Recap of *A Common Cause to All: A Convening of States on the 250th Anniversary of the Call for Committees of Correspondence

Chairman Austin began his report by thanking the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation (CWF), Cliff Fleet, and Carly Fiorina for their role and investment in the successful A Common Cause to All kick-off weekend. He also recognized the collaboration between CWF, the VA250 commission, Virginia Museum of History and Culture, and the Jamestown-Yorktown Foundation.

Ms. Wilson highlighted the widespread media coverage and outreach accomplished as a result of the event. Articles appeared in Time Magazine, Wall Street Journal, and a reporter from the NYTimes attended, in addition to many local and regional papers and news stations who also reported on the event. Ms. Wilson summarized feedback received from the post-event attendee survey which was overwhelmingly positive. As a reflection of the success of the weekend, tentative dates have been outlined for conferences in March 2024 and 2025.

Mr. Fleet recognized the collective efforts between Colonial Williamsburg and the Commission in putting the event together. It got people excited across the organization, the state, and the country. Virginia established a leadership role among states in the 250th and there are many historical moments to lean into.

During discussion, Chairman Austin pledged the Commission’s commitment to rising above divisiveness; uniting in purpose; ensuring that programs are representative and inclusive of all citizens and all stories; and continuing to progress forward, ever striving towards a more perfect Union.

Staff Report

Ms. Wilson played the VA250 promotional video, reviewed key anniversary dates and plans in development, and provided an update on other activities:

1. Honorary Leadership Council: Chairman Austin and Vice-Chair Locke have invited Governor Youngkin and all former Virginia Governors to join the VA250 Honorary Leadership Council. Additional invitations will be forthcoming.

2. Local VA250 committees: 97 localities have formed local committees. Staff will follow up with the remaining 37 localities, conduct information sessions, and continue to provide resources and technical assistance.

3. Logo requests: Staff creates customized logos for use by local committees and provides a limited-use provisional approval for use of the Commission’s logo. The Commission reviewed logo requests to date, and there being no objection, assented to final approval of such requests.

4. Grants to local committees: In addition to the grant funding provided through VTC, staff is also working to create a grant stream through Virginia Humanities and the Virginia Commission for the Arts, to provide additional funds to communities across Virginia for the creation and promotion of events related to the 250th.

5. VHMC/JYF exhibition, Give Me Liberty: Virginia and the Forging of a Nation: An MOU has been executed between the Commission and VMHC and the first installment ($500,000) has been paid in sponsorship of the joint exhibition and accompanying panel exhibit.

6. Mobile exhibition: Staff has identified a suitable tractor-trailer to lease for the mobile exhibition and will continue to develop the project, with an anticipated launch date of Fall 2024.
7. Revolutionary Road Trips with Darley: Award-winning travel journalist Darley Newman is creating a series of up to four episodes that will highlight historic sites across Virginia. Shows are broadcast on PBS and Amazon Prime and reach 330 million viewers, with an additional social media reach of 110,000 followers. Should plans for the program continue to develop with a statewide reach, up to $10,000 may be invested from the Commission’s marketing budget to support the project (each episode of which costs $80,000), in return for sponsorship recognition, streaming links for incorporation on the VA250.org website, and promotional consideration.

President Rowe inquired about the 250th anniversary of Phi Beta Kappa at William & Mary. It was founded on the campus as an open debate society, dedicated to the freedom of inquiry. Commemorating the establishment would give Virginia the opportunity to be the anchor for college and university leaders to come together, and William & Mary to be the host.
